Rising Letters from President Cleveland and speaker Carlisle Being Read.

Out Applause.

By Telegraph to the Dispatch.

Boston, Mass., December 28.—The annual banquet of the Massachusetts Tariff Reform League, which took place here at the Hotel Vendome this evening, proved one of the most brilliant political gatherings of the season. The principal guest of the evening was Secretary Endicott, a member of the League, who spoke briefly. President Cleveland, another speaker, W. H. Wigginson, Hon. P. A. Collier, Hon. J. F. Andrew, Hon. Henry L. Pierce, Robert Blakes, Hon. George S. Hall, C. C. Condon, Hon. Leopold Morse, Jess Metcalf, M. T. Stevens, Congressman John D. Long, and William S. Brewster, Hon. William E. Doolittle, Referring to the fact he had said there was indecision in the cabinet of President Cleveland, a brave and honest man, who refused to catch at votes when his country's good was at stake, these words were given for President Cleveland, President Cleveland's letter was read, it was as follows:

Executive Mansion, Dec. 24, 1888.

To the Annual Banquet of the Massachusetts Tariff Reform League.

gentlemen—I am exceedingly sorry that I cannot be present at the annual dinner of the Mass. Tariff Reform League on the 28th instant.

It is not for want of desire to do so, but I have been compelled to remain at home, and I do not propose to go to Boston to-morrow.

I trust you will excuse me for this, and I hope you will understand my doing so.

Yours very truly,

JESSE METCALF.
